Subject: Microsoft Remedy

I've heard that Microsoft is planning to "donate" Microsoft products as part of their remedy. As this is planned to go to schools, I think a better idea is cash, so the school can choose their own technology. I've also heard that Microsoft donates large amounts of Microsoft products to schools - somehow this seems to be locking them in the market again, while avoiding cries of antitrust. I think Microsoft should truly be punished, and let's leave the politics out.
